Perfect pitch

Prince Edward Island designer Jody Racicot showcased his unique stereo, HiFi, at the 2012 Interior Design Show in Toronto. A playful ode to 1960s modern design, the curved cherrywood console is bluetooth-enabled and can stream music from any wireless device. Racicot spent six months on the project. "It has to look as good as it sounds," he says.

Clean edge

Jessica Waterman, a textile artist and carpenter in Newfoundland, used pieces of discarded moulding and trim to create levels of texture in this stylish bench, encasing the top in clear resin. See more samples of her unique work in "Last Look" on page 74.
